Report of Board of Health

To the Selectmen:

All complaints for existing nuisances were carefully investigated by the Board and, where the facts warranted it, the offending parties were made to abate the same.

From the beginning of the year to the writing of this report nearly twenty-five cases of measles were reported to the Board, and three cases of scarlet fever, necessitating the closing of the schools for a week at a time upon two different occasions. All patients recovered.

Respectfully submitted,

Under this classical course we have been on the approved list of high schools of New Hampshire for six consecutive years. Physics was added to our curriculum three years ago and has proved one of the most interesting and educative of studies. At a recent meeting of the School Board, advanced mathematics was added as an elective instead of Latin for the junior class, but to be allowed only on advice and with consent of the Principal. I, also, recommend chemistry as an elective for the senior class. This can be done with the same number of teachers by alternating the teaching of physics and chemistry to the juniors and seniors united; thereby enriching and strengthening our course. It would be ill advised for me to offer any criticism or eucumium on the work done in our high school. The test of education is the test of life, and the test of life is not: "How many hours have you studied? How many questions can you answer?" but rather, "What are you? What have you to give? What can you do?"

In this spirit, I have tried to form some adequate judgment of the merits not only of our high school course, but also of our town system of schools.

From consultations with principal and instructors where our pupils and graduates have attended, I have obtained the following data. First, those who have left our school to attend other high schools, as Manchester, Dover, and Kingston, have maintained creditable standing in corresponding classes. Secondly, our graduates under this course of study, not only have maintained good standing in the higher institutions they have attended, but are also taking leading positions in their vocations of life. These are encouraging omens and show to us that our schools have served a useful purpose.

However, in this utilitarian age, this period of social service, the question arises whether or not our present course in the high school is too narrow to meet the opportunities and improve the educative possibilities of this town. We all know, for the last fifty years, high school courses have been based on college requirements, and those requirements adapted to the professions of law, medicine and philosophy, with the additional idea that the formal training obtained would better prepare one for any vocation of life. But this idea of formal discipline, having been considered a fallacy by advanced educators of to-day, we are able to see how far we are from meeting the demands of our rural life.

To show that a classical course alone does not fairly meet the educational needs of New Hampshire, I will submit some data, taken from a report given by our superintendent of public instruction at Plymouth last December. "The rate of movement of pupils maintained last year was such that out of every 100 entering Grade I, 79 completed Grade VIII, 69 entered a secondary school, 38 graduated from a secondary school, and seven entered college." Thus throughout the state, where classical courses only have been maintained, the interests of one-fifth of the pupils have been served to the detriment of four-fifths.

Therefore in harmony with my remarks last June, I recommend the adoption of the domestic arts course and that of agriculture in the near future. The domestic arts should come first and its elementary principles taught in the seventh and eight grades.

When we consider the fact, that, according to our last census, there are twenty-five million school children in the United States, and of these fourteen million belong to rural communities, we are impressed that the agricultural colleges cannot accomplish the most good for the greatest number of our agricultural population until the courses of study in common and high schools are so modified as to give the farmer's children that elementary training which will enable them to appreciate and apply what the experiment station and college teach. From the report of our State Superintendent, I learn that "Coos, the northernmost county of New Hampshire, has made the greatest advance of any part of the state. Out of eight high schools in the county, six have complete, fully equipped vocational courses." In order that we may better understand the content of these courses, I beg space to insert the curricula as suggested in the program of studies for secondary schools of New Hampshire.

These two courses together with our classical course already established, with proper consolidation and co-ordination of classes, could be carried on by three teachers, and your school would increase from fifty to one hundred pupils.

No town in Rockingham county is better situated for a domestic arts and agricultural high school. In respect to central location, railroad facilities, and contiguous territory, it is unparalleled. It may mean a new school building. Provided it does, what more valuable financial asset could the town have than a modern, well equipped, and efficient agricultural school?

Trusting, if there are any sentiments herein expressed that appeal to the citizens of this town, you will not merely accept them as reasonable but will see that some immediate action be taken.

Respectfully submitted,

FREDERICK T. JOHNSON, Principal.

Your committee have greatly improved the efficiency of rooms three and four of the high school building by extending the partition to the ceiling, which has made the acoustics of the rooms beyond criticism, and by adding adjustable seats and desks from time to time as new pupils sought admission. Room 3 (Grades V-VI) did not have seating capacity for the pupils sent last fall from Grade V of the Parochial school, so the instruction of these pupils devolved upon the teacher of Grades III-IV, as the seating capacity of her room would admit them. This caused much additional work on the part of the teacher of these grades, but these pupils have made very good advancement, especially when we consider that all of them were efficient in the French language only. In this connection we beg to state that this unusual number from the Parochial school is due to their teaching force being reduced to one teacher. Owing to this influx of pupils Grade VI alone will number 50 to 55 pupils next fall, and should be in one room by itself. This will mean an additional teacher, and provision for a new room.

Early in the summer vacation your committee made an investigation relative to the sanitary condition of the high school building. The drain pipe leading to the road was found clogged. This kept the basement damp and partially filled with water in wet weather, much to the detriment of the heating apparatus. Because of the lack of a cellar door, the ashes had accumulated to many loads and with them more or less debris. Suffice it to say that the entire basement was put into proper condition, and we trust this duty hereafter will be attended to at least yearly. Your committee have been giving special attention to the betterment of the West Epping school. We find too many grades there for one teacher. Under such conditions pupils cannot accomplish the best results. Such a conglomeration of work has a tendency to retard educational growth. Here we have one large room which could be divided for two teachers. This would give about three grades to a teacher, and if the number of pupils continues to increase the town in the near future will be obliged to pursue some such method.

The out-buildings have been remodelled at a reasonable expense and are now in suitable condition.

The primary building was given due inspection with regard to a re-arrangement of grades in respect to rooms, and it was found advisable to put Grades I-II in the lower room and Grades III-IV in the upper room rather than vice versa as formerly. This has met the entire approval, we think, of those who send scholars to this building, as the results thereby are in many ways by far more satisfactory.

Your committee have taken especial care in the selection of teachers and feel that in no case have they made a mistake, and wish to take this opportunity of expressing their appreciation of the co-operation and intense interest which every teacher has manifested.

SALARIES OF TEACHERS.

Because of the high cost of living and the unusual demand for teachers who are graduates of Normal schools, your committee have been obliged to increase the salaries of the teachers to be commensurate with those paid elsewhere in the state for similar positions. This extra expenditure, with the increased cost of fuel, and the unexpected outlay for school furniture, are reasons for the increase in the cost of maintaining our schools.

LOSS OF STATE AID.

Owing to the increase in the equalized valuation of our town we shall not hereafter receive the usual state aid, an explanation of which will be given in detail at our school meeting.

Respectfully submitted,

WALTER P. SANBORN,
WILLIAM S. MASON,
AUGUSTUS D. BROWN,
